and Kahuku. There will be no difference in the fees for sending money from any of the lesser towns and the States. The rates will be the same as from Honolulu to towns in the States. Mr. Flint announces that there are but three Presidential offices on the Islands, it having been incorrectly reported from Washington dispatches that Lahaina had been placed in that class. The three of the Presidential class are Honolulu, Hilo and Kohala. Lahaina was not able to show sufficient postoffice receipts, being $43 below the necessary Many of the postmasters in the small er offices have refused thus far to qualify, as they do not understand the American system of paying the postmasters by the number of stamps sold instead of a regular salary. There is so much red tape, giving of bonds, etc., too, that many of the native postmasters have in several towns refused to take the added responsibility given

In order to give good service around the rural districts, Mr. Flint is talking strongly of instituting the rural free delivery system. This would fill the place of many small offices that have had to be given up, or will be dropped from the asts within a short time
